[6] THE BAROQUE SYNAGOGUE AND "JEDERSCHAFT" ALLEY

The stately home Napfstraße 1, standing here for several decades. For more than thirty years, it was owned and lived in by Joseph Lilienfeld, a merchant and owner of the successful textile wholesale business in this building, under the name “Weiß und Holz” (White and Wood). Lies Holzinger and Brandis who ran and owned a popular textile store, plus a fancy shopping boulevard of Regensburg.

The five stumbling stones here illustrate what happened to the Lilienfelds and their close relations. The Jewish community had to be destroyed. It meant windfall profits, for the former owners, it spelled expropriation, humiliation, and in the end, quite often, suffering a violent death.

The Synagogue was in use until 1970 when the building was converted to the Jewish Community Hall, situated right next to the synagogue but came through the Jewish Community building, situated right next to the synagogue but came through the municipality of Regensburg. "Lechaim" is a Jewish toast expression that means "to life!" Dealing with Jewish life and culture, the City of Regensburg is involved in the EU-project REDISCOVER. The aim of REDISCOVER is to expose and exploit the concealed Jewish heritage of the Danube region by developing offers accessible to a wide public. Nine partner cities of the Danube region are dedicated to this EU-project. The project's timeframe is three years and it is mostly financed by the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) within the Interreg Danube Transnational Programme.

At a local level the project has gathered many experts of different fields and pilot projects have been created. Among other pilots, a cultural guide of Jewish traces in Regensburg and a cookbook are being developed.

This city map is designed to show distinctive Jewish places in Regensburg and to convey their historical and current relevance. Through the proposed tour it is possible to discover the traces of the past and perceive the present with new eyes. Each station has its own short explanation and additional interesting digital information (photos, audios, texts, etc.) are accessible via a QR-Code.
